COMLOT
DES NATIONS
CONTRE LE
MASHIAH

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are living in poverty has increased from 1.2 billion to 1.6 billion (World Bank 2000).

There are a number of reasons for this increase in poverty. One of the main reasons is the rapid population growth in the developing world. The number of people in the world is increasing at a rate of about 1.2% per year, and this is putting a strain on the world's resources. Another reason is the increasing inequality in the distribution of income. The rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer.

There are a number of ways in which we can reduce poverty. One way is to increase the number of jobs in the developing world. This can be done by encouraging investment in the private sector and by providing training and education for the poor. Another way is to improve the distribution of income. This can be done by increasing taxes on the rich and by providing social services for the poor.

There are a number of challenges that we face in reducing poverty. One of the main challenges is the increasing inequality in the distribution of income. The rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer. Another challenge is the rapid population growth in the developing world. The number of people in the world is increasing at a rate of about 1.2% per year, and this is putting a strain on the world's resources.

There are a number of ways in which we can overcome these challenges. One way is to increase the number of jobs in the developing world. This can be done by encouraging investment in the private sector and by providing training and education for the poor. Another way is to improve the distribution of income. This can be done by increasing taxes on the rich and by providing social services for the poor.
